Site for fire/ambulance building still uncertain

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Despite having recently spent more than $50,000 to expand and square up the uptown site on which the town's undersized and outdated fire station sits, Bethel selectmen are not ready to commit to building a new fire station and ambulance barn at that site.

There is little apparent disagreement that a new building is needed. Two separate engineering studies in recent years have pointed to the current building's manifold inadequacies.

These include a cracked foundation and masonry, settling, inadequate floor strength and an inefficient heating system.

But above all the present station is simply too small to accommodate both training activities and modern, larger fire trucks (needed to help hold down insurance rates for homeowners).

The engineering studies and the town's Public Safety Committee looked at the options and concluded that attempting to renovate and/or expand the present building would not be cost effective.

The committee twice recommended that the building be raised and replaced with a modern structure, one that would accommodate both the Fire Department and Rescue Service.

Andover officials ask to set back Town Meeting date

By ALISON ALOISIO

Town officials are asking Andover voters to change the annual Town Meeting to the third Saturday in March. It is currently held the first Saturday.

The issue is one of three that residents will consider at a special Town Meeting Oct. 30. Others include the purchase of a fire truck and a proposal for a Barking-Dog Ordinance.

About two dozen townspeople attended a public hearing last week on the questions.

Changing the annual Town Meeting, said secretary Joan Stinson Carney, "will give us more time so we don't make mistakes," in preparing the warrant and town report.

Carney said the town's certified public accountant does not meet with selectmen until mid-January each year. That makes the schedule very tight, she said, and has led to some errors that had to be dealt with at Town Meeting.

Selectman Brad Best said the increasing complexity of town government also demands more time.

Board kills option for sixth-graders to stay at AES

By ALISON ALOISIO

The SAD44 School Board voted Monday to bring all Andover sixth-graders to Telstar Middle School, rather than continue to allow them the choice of staying at the Andover Elementary School.

About 15 Andover residents attended the board meeting to voice their opposition, but they failed to convince a majority of directors.

The question of where Andover sixth-graders attend school has long been an emotional issue. Parents, until now, have had a choice of keeping their children at AES or sending them to TMS.

All other district sixth-graders attend the middle school.

This year, all of Andover's sixth-graders chose to go to TMS. Prompted in part by that fact, the board moved to change its policy to require all sixth-graders to do so.

Notices of the proposal were sent home with AES students in September. On Oct. 9, the board approved a first reading of the policy change. On Monday, they voted on a second reading, which finalized the decision.

Willard, Bailey capture MVC titles

By ALISON ALOISIO

Telstar cross-country runners captured the individual titles for both boys and girls Saturday in the Mountain Valley Conference Championships.

Senior Anna Willard captured her third MVC title, setting a course record with a time of 20:01 on the 3.1 mile course. The competition was held at the University of Maine at Augusta.

Junior Fred Bailey won the boys' title for the first time, with a time of 17:38.

Fifty-two runners participated in the boys' race, with the Rebel boys placing fourth of six teams. The girls' team does not have enough runners to score as a team. A total of 46 girls raced. (For complete results, see page 11.)

Telstar runners who qualified will compete Saturday in the Class C Regional competition at Poland Regional High School.

Fallen airmen honored in Newry

This piece of fuselage is among the scraps remaining from the 1960 crash in Newry of a KC97 Air Force refueling plane. It still bears the letter "E" from the word "Force" in "United States Air Force." A memorial plaque to the five crewmen killed in the crash was dedicated Saturday by the Maine Aviation Historical Society. One of the society's goals is to preserve crash sites from pilferage and other damage, such as the half-dozen apparent bullet holes in this piece.

Plaque remembers casualties of 1960 crash

By ALISON ALOISIO

Two weeks into a 21st-century air war, an aviation historical society Saturday honored five Cold War airmen who died in a 1960 crash in Newry.

Members of the Maine Aviation Historical Society gathered on Jonathan Smith Mountain to dedicate a memorial to the crew of a U.S. Air Force KC97 tanker plane. The plane crashed the night of June 27, 1960, while conducting a refueling operation with a B47 jet.

The tanker was based in Plattsburgh, N.Y., and was on a practice mission. Such missions were routine over Maine, said Peter Norton, vice president of MAHS. In the event the Cold War had turned into a shooting war, many American planes would fly over Maine on their way overseas, he said, and would need refueling before heading out over the ocean.

According to newspaper accounts at the time, the plane, accompanied by another tanker, had left Plattsburgh at about 8:15 p.m. It had just gotten into position to refuel the jet when flames appeared around the left outer engine. The refueling boom operator, Sgt. Robert Costello, called to the jet pilot to "break away." The tanker's pilot,

Lt. William Burgess, was heard to say, "I'm on fire."

The crew presumably then went into a procedure to try to put out the flames by maneuvering. But the heat was so great that the section of wing outside the engine broke off, sending the plane into a spiral. The crew was unable to bail out, and the plane crashed into the side of the mountain, blasting a large crater and starting a woods fire.

Many people at the Rumford Drive In reportedly saw the engine fire, and the resulting explosion when the plane crashed. It was also visible from Berlin and Lewiston, and the explosion was heard as far away as South Paris. The wing piece fell into Howard Pond in Hanover.

Local men went to the crash site and immediately found the bodies of three crewmen. The other two were found the next day.

It was later determined that a faulty mechanical part had failed,

MILL CITY BASEBALL WRAP UP

To the Editor:

The Mill City All American Baseball Team in Lowell, Mass., ended its season with 23 wins and 17 losses.

Listen to how close it was. We were the only team with a winner record that didn't make the playoffs.

Two teams had 25 wins and two teams had 24 wins; only four teams make the playoffs. We were the odd men out with 23 wins; every out down to the last one meant something.

The sad news is I sold out my rights to Mill City Team.

The good news is my original intent of bringing a team to Maine is being realized.

I have two partners in this venture, both lawyers. One is the former lawyer for the Philadelphia Phillies and part-owner of the New Haven Ravens baseball team. The other partner has impressed me greatly in his organization skills — I'm learning a lot.

The site, Sanford, and the newly renovated Goodall Park are both very impressive. The city has shown great interest in our venture and opened their arms to us.

We have been approved both by the town of Sanford and the NECBL League. We are currently forming a corporation and deciding on a name for the team — Sanford Lobstermen, Sanford Clam Diggers, and Sanford Mainers seem to be leading candidates.

Maine's college coaches are very excited, and I am, too, to say the least. It's good to be back in Maine.

Stay tuned.

No Andover parents spoke at the Oct. 9 meeting. Said parent Jennifer Lannon last Friday, "Some assumed it was a done deal." But after learning that was not the case, she said, people decided to let their views be known.

On Monday, Lannon told the board the issue "affects our community as a whole," and she proposed the agenda item be tabled until Andover could discuss the question as a community at the annual Town Meeting in March.

Joan Carney, who does not have children in school, agreed, saying that non-parents should also have been notified.

Others spoke on the issue itself. Parent Sharon Farrington said she realized TMS offers resources AES can't, but "my concern is emotional," she said. "It's pushed on (students) in fifth grade that they're going to Telstar," she said, with some parents and students making the decision to attend TMS rather than be one of only one or two students left behind.

Janet Farrington said she has a fifth-grader "already not looking forward to coming to Telstar." She cited the long bus ride as one reason. "I don't understand why the board and Mr. Rosberg don't feel this is a community issue," she said.

But parent Lynn Tripp of Woodstock saw it differently. She said her two daughters had no choice but to go to TMS, "and they've both functioned wonderfully. Telstar is not a horrible place. To say they're not going to function as sixth-graders here is wrong."

But, countered Farrington, "We just want to be given the choice. It doesn't matter who else's kid goes to Telstar. I want to do what's right for mine."

Keith Farrington presented the results of a questionnaire he had placed in various locations in Andover. It asked if the policy should be changed. By a 75 to 3 margin, those responding opposed taking away the choice.

Board's rationale

Bethel director Jill Rundle reviewed the reasons behind the board's move to make the change. She said there is now a very effective transition program in place for incoming sixth-graders, and AES students miss out on it if they wait until seventh grade to attend TMS. She also said for students coming in seventh grade, the adjustment is similar to changing to a new school district.

When there are sixth-graders at AES, they are in a multi-grade class with fifth-graders. Rundle said the uncertainty each year of knowing if there will be any sixth-graders, and if so how many, makes it difficult to plan the curriculum.

After the Oct. 9 vote, Supt. Kent Rosberg said, "the staff at the school is wholeheartedly behind (a policy change), and feel, in some instances, it's overdue." Rosberg specifically cited the support of John Emery, the 5/6 teacher at AES, and Roger Sabin, the lead teacher.

Several of the parents at the meeting questioned the difficulty of making the transition to TMS in seventh grade, saying they had done it successfully themselves.

The vote was taken shortly after Rundle's comments. Only Lori Hall of Andover and Phil Korhonen of Woodstock voted in opposition. Andover director and board chair Kelly Scotti voted for the change. The third Andover director, Sid Pew, did not attend the meeting.

The weighted vote was 640-130.

rupturing a fuel line and causing the fire in the engine.

Those killed were: 1st Lt. William F. Burgess, 26, of Indian Lake, N.Y., the aircraft commander; 1st Lt. Lewis F. Turner, 25, of Spokane, Wash., the copilot; 2nd Lt. Raymond S. Kisonas, 26, of Waterbury, Conn., navigator; M-Sgt. Harold E. Young, 40, of Selma, Ala., flight engineer; and T-Sgt. Robert P. Costello, 30, of Greenfield, Ill., boom operator.

The memorial

The crash took place on the property of Warren and Bernard Powers. Last week Warren's son, Tim, bulldozed a spot for the memorial next to the site. He placed a large boulder in a clearing, located on a logging road/snowmobile trail.

MAHS provided a granite plaque with the crewmen's names, which was placed on the stone. Two insignias of the Strategic Air Command, to which the plane and operation belonged, are also on the stone.

Scott Grant of Bethel, a 10-year MAHS member, was instrumental in organizing the memorial and dedication.

Norton, in addressing a small group of MAHS members and others who gathered Saturday, said: "Putting up the memorial is part of telling the story."

"These people lived every day like they were going to war in 15 or 20 minutes," he said.

Ever since the Berlin Wall came down in 1990, ending the Cold War, the United States has lived in a relative state of "bliss," said Norton — "until Sept. 11."

Plane pieces still on site

There are still many parts of the plane scattered around the crater where it crashed. The largest is a piece of the fuselage from the tail section of the plane. Other fuselage and wing parts are also recognizable, as well as pieces of the engine and landing gear.

Smaller pieces have words: "Wing vent drain," "No. 1, No. 2, No. 3, No. 4" (from the refueling control panel).

One fuselage piece still bears a large letter "E," with part of what appears to be a letter C before it — likely the end of the word "Force" in the "United States Air Force" painted on the side of the plane.

The group that gathered for the dedication included people from other parts of Maine as well as New Hampshire. They wandered through the woods examining the wreckage, but left all the pieces in their resting places when they departed.

Norton said there had originally been plans for a flyover by a Maine Air National Guard plane, but the events in the Middle East have the Guard otherwise occupied. Relatives of some of the crewmen were found and notified of the dedication, but were unable to attend, Norton said.

Fire station

And committee members didn't think an adequate building could be built at the current site, which is located off the town common.

In October 1998 committee Chairman Don Vautour told the selectmen: "I don't think there's a member of the committee who wants to go the route to repair (the building) or spend a lot of dollars on it, and in the end not come up with the package we could have somewhere else."

But at that point the selectmen were not ready to move ahead with any action on the project. Mindful that town voters had recently agreed to borrow $1.3 million to put toward the wastewater treatment plant upgrade, they instead asked the committee to report back with more specifics and numbers — in order to better sell the project to voters when the time was right.

The decision did not sit well with some members of the Public Safety Committee. Vautour pointed to the amount of work they had put into the project, adding, "If we're going to put time into this project, we'd like to see something come out of it this year."

The committee members did agree to move ahead gathering information, but when they returned to the selectmen — in August 1999 and again in March 2000 — they were still unable to generate any momentum for the project.

At the August 1999 meeting they strongly urged that a new site be found for the facility, one with greater room to expand and better access to essential services. After examining a number of options, they recommended a lot in Bethel Station.

The selectmen agreed only to consider the matter further at a later meeting.

At the March 2000 meeting, the committee members repeated their call for building a new facility in Bethel Station.

This time the selectmen again took no action, but at the suggestion of Vautour they did agree to expand and restructure the committee, and to charge it with educating the public regarding the need for a new facility, to analyze options and cost, and — once again — possible sites.

That did not happen. The committee did not meet for the next year, according to Town Manager Scott Cole, and some original members drifted away.

Former committee member Punky Davis said he and other members were disappointed with the manner the selectmen had handled the matter.

At that point the committee had met nearly every week or every other week for at least two years, Davis said, and members had visited numerous potential sites in Bethel, as well as other fire stations in the areas.

But then, he said, the selectmen apparently made a de-facto decision after the March 2000 meeting not to go ahead with the Bethel Station site.

"The decision was made after the meeting and none of us was contacted," Davis said. "We all thought that wasn't right."

The issue then lay dormant until April of this year, when the selectmen took it up again and decided: 1) that a new facility was needed, and 2) that public sentiment appeared to be strongly in favor of keeping it at the current location.

They instructed Cole to draw up an architectural request for a proposal and to negotiate with a fire station abutter regarding the purchase of more land there.

The town subsequently purchased approximately three-quarters of an acre at the rear of the parcel. The land cost $38,000, and other costs, including a feasibility study, legal and surveying fees and landscaping, raised the total price to $52,323.

The funds came from $18,000 approved by voters in 1999 for the feasibility study, and $40,000 appropriated at the 2001 Town Meeting for the possible purchase of the land (this was a line item in an article covering the town's Capital Improvement appropriation).

Cole, assuming, he said, that the town was now committed to building at the site off the common, also prepared the architectural RFP, describing a facility to be constructed there.

But last week, when he presented the RFP to the selectmen for their approval, they hesitated, arguing it was up to town voters, not the selectmen, to decide where the new facility should be built.

Of the decision to purchase more land at the current site, Chairman Dutch Dresser said: "I knew that was going to end up looking like a de-facto decision. At the time we made it pretty clear that we thought it was a good purchase regardless. I believe we ought to have the fire station right there. I believe that's what everybody here believes, too, but we're not empowered to make that call. I think we need to find some kind of reasonable process to make that call."

Al Barth — who has generally not favored the current site — concurred. "We have been accused of railroad things, and I think we have to avoid that," he said. "I think we do have a responsibility to offer the two sites."

Ultimately, they instructed Cole to reword the RFP in such a way that it was not limited to the one site.

A public hearing has been tentatively scheduled for early February. Based on the input at that hearing, the selectmen said, they would decide how many options to offer voters at the Town Meeting in June.

Reggie Brown said that if participants at the hearing seemed to favor the current site, he would be comfortable deciding to offer only the one site for an up-or-down vote at Town Meeting.

"It's almost like we're not doing our jobs if we put (more sites) up for vote," he said.

While voters may or may not have an option on where a new fire station is built, they will have the final say if it gets built.

There are no solid projections for the cost of such a project, Cole said last week, but at a ballpark price of $85 a square foot, an 18,000-square foot combined fire and rescue building would cost just over $1.5 million.

The penalty for a violation would be a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $500. If there are multiple violations, a court may order the dog be removed from town, humanely disposed of, given away or sold.

The Oct. 30 meeting will take place at 7 p.m. at the Town Hall.

Briefly

Input sought on comprehensive plan

GREENWOOD—The Greenwood Comprehensive Plan Committee will hold a "Public Visioning" meeting Nov. 13 at 7 p.m. at the Town Hall. Members are seeking citizens' ideas regarding growth of the town over the next 10 years. Both residents and non-resident taxpayers are invited. Those planning to attend are asked to consider the following in preparation for the meeting: List several things you like that the town should work to retain over the next 10 years; list the most important issues that need to be addressed in planning for the future. The meeting will be facilitated by John Maloney of AVCOG. Light refreshments will be served. Members of the committee are: Alan Hamilton, chairman; David Brainard, vice chairman; Jeff Harren, treasurer; Susan Buckley, secretary; Rodney Westleigh and Ed Cesarek. The committee will also hold regular meetings on Nov. 5 at 6 p.m. and Nov. 19 at 7 p.m.

Recycling facts and figures

GREENWOOD—Residents of Greenwood and Woodstock can effectively recycle for free for the remainder of 2001, according to Marie Bartlett, marketing/educational director. The towns pay $6,000 a year for membership in the Oxford County Solid Waste and Recycling Corp. By reaching the annual goal of recycling 83 tons, said Bartlett, the towns have covered the cost of the membership fee in "avoided costs" of trash disposal. Disposal costs $86 a ton. Now, for the last two and one-half months of this year, recycling will go entirely to saving money on trash disposal. In the year 2000, the towns recycled 120 tons of material, while paying a $7,200 membership fee. Had the material been trashed instead, the town would have paid $10,377 in disposal fees. The recycling rate for 2000 was 39.7 percent.

Benefit raises $3,000

NEWRY—The Brad Cunningham Memorial Benefit, held Oct. 13 at Sunday River Ski Resort, raised $3,000 for the Firefighters 911 Disaster Relief Fund, to benefit families of fallen New York City firefighters. Firemen from Bethel and Newry served as waiters, and Sunday River donated the food and the use of the Summit Hotel ballroom. More than 200 people attended.

Blood drive at Gould

BETHEL—A Red Cross Blood Drive will take place Thursday, Nov. 8 at the Gould Academy gymnasium. The hours of the drive are noon to 5 p.m.

Woman wins $77,777

MEXICO—Priscilla Chartier of Roxbury won $77,777 from a Lucky 7 scratch ticket bought at the Mexico One Stop. Store owner Garry Collins said this was the largest scratch ticket winner at his store. Last year, someone won $15,000. Collins' business will receive 1 percent of the amount for selling the ticket. Chartier is a regular customer.

Rumford doctor suspended

AUGUSTA—The state Board of Licensure in Medicine has suspended a Rumford doctor from practice for 360 days after finding him guilty of incompetence and unprofessional conduct. The board found that Dr. Verne D. Harris, an obstetrician and gynecologist, had failed to notify Anthem Blue Cross and Blue Shield of previous disciplinary actions against him by Maine and California, and of his exclusion from Medicare and Medicaid programs. He also was found guilty of prescribing drugs to a family member in violation of the American Medical Association's Code of Medical Ethics. Harris, who did not appear at the board's final hearing on Oct. 9, could not be reached for comment. There is no phone listed in his name in Maine. Randal Manning, executive director of the Board of Licensure in Medicine, said Harris had been disciplined in California for having sex with a patient before he moved to Maine. Under an agreement with the board last year, Harris agreed to always have a chaperone in his office when attending to female patients alone. He also was required to notify his employers, hospitals and insurance companies he dealt with about that agreement. "He failed to do that," Manning said.

Lost hiker donates money

CONCORD, N.H.—A hiker lost in the White Mountains two weeks ago said last week he will donate $6,000 to the Appalachian Mountain Club, which helped find him. Mark Friedman, 46, of MT. Kisco, N.Y., said he wants the money used to mark trails better and for improved weather reports for hikers. The money represents $500 for each of the 12 searchers in the group that found him Oct. 11, two days after he set out on what he planned as a one-day hike. He was about 4,080 up Mt. Washington. Friedman set out in good weather from Crawford Notch the morning of Oct. 9. He encountered 3- to 4-foot snowdrifts, and became lost. State Fish and Game Department officials said Friedman was unprepared for the 15-mile hike and misjudged the amount of time it would take to complete it. Friedman, an experienced hiker, vigorously disputed that. Fish and Game is deciding whether to bill Friedman under the state's reckless hiking law. The agency's executive director said Friedman's donation could work in his favor.

Rail service starts Dec. 14

AUGUSTA—Passenger rail service from Portland to Boston will resume Dec. 14, Amtrak's acting chairman said last week. Michael Dukakis said the inaugural run will take place Dec. 14, with regular service beginning the next day. The service resumes a decade after the first steps were taken to revive passenger rail service from Portland to Boston, and 36 years after passengers last rode the rails between the two New England points. The "Downeaster" will hit speeds up to 60 mph, and rail officials hope to eventually boost the speed to 80 mph. It will make four daily round trips. The stops will include Haverhill, Mass.; Dover and Exeter, N.H.; and Wells and Saco. There will also be weekend stops in Durham, N.H. and summer stops in Old Orchard Beach. One-way tickets from Portland to Boston will cost $21, and same-day, round-trip service will cost $35. Fares will be less from the other stops along the 114-mile route from Portland to Boston's North Station. Wayne Davis, chairman of the advocacy group TrainRiders Northeast, said he has little doubt the Downeaster will draw enough riders to justify the expense. "It's been studied to death," he said. "No other project in the history of the state has been subject to more public scrutiny, so we know the ridership is there." The last passenger service ended in 1965, the victim of improved highways and expanded jet travel. The initial date for restoration of service was June 1993, but the date has been pushed back dozens of times due to complications dealing with such issues as speed of trains, weight and conditions of rails, and labor.

Fingerprints linked to Fryeburg man

BANGOR—Maine State Police found accused murderer Carl Wayne Heath's fingerprints in the car in which the body of Bangor taxi driver Donna Leen was discovered last week in a field in Corinth. A court affidavit said the fingerprints on the inside rearview mirror of Leen's taxi match those of Heath, 20, of Fryeburg. Leen was dispatched to an MDOT construction site in Bangor at about 12:30 p.m. Oct. 13. She contacted a dispatcher minutes later, but wasn't heard from again after that. A hammer and computer printer were reported stolen from the construction site, and a computer printer was found in an opened box inside the car. The affidavit also said the 60-year-old Bangor woman's head injuries were caused by blows from a hammer, and that a bloody hammer was found inside the taxi. Heath's fingerprints were also found at the construction site, where a call for a taxi was made shortly after noon on the 13th.

Deer season starting

AUGUSTA—Despite last year's harsh winter, deer hunters should find plenty of opportunity, with deer populations still at their highest level since the 1950s. While hunters will probably not match last year's record buck harvest of 21,422, the number of successful hunters should be in line with that of deer hunting seasons in the mid-to-late 1990s. The regular firearm season opens Oct. 27 for residents, and Oct. 29 for all hunters. Gerry Lavigne, deer biologist for IFW, said the harsh winter followed a string of below average winters, with the result that the population is higher than it was three years ago.

From the Bethel Police Log:

Thursday, Oct. 18

At 3:38 p.m. police investigated a single-vehicle accident on Route 2. The operator lost control while hauling a trailer and skidded into the west-bound ditch.

At 10:54 p.m. police responded to a fire call on Paradise Road for a powerline gapping. It was found to be a sparking wire. The Fire Department and CMP responded. A tree branch that was hitting the wire was cut.

At 10:30 a.m. Sarah Lane, 18, of Bethel was charged with keeping a dangerous dog, failure to license a dog and failure to vaccinate a dog. The charges stemmed from a dog attack in West Bethel.

featuring movie and music stars with hugely differing views, styles and backgrounds coming together to raise funds for the victims of tragedy. Many other groups, from all around the country have raised money, given blood and made donations, all to help others cope. What is it that holds us together? In a word, "Freedom." Only here are people willing to allow others to express differing beliefs, engage in different religions and choose their own vocations without fear of government interference.

It is not America that is afraid. It is the terrorists. What are they afraid of? Ideas. They don't want people to think independently. They don't want women to have the same rights as men. In short, they are afraid of "Freedom."

Andover

by Joan Stinson Carney

These are the times that try men's and women's souls. In the course of our town's history, many serious and not so serious events have taken place. Hostile Indians, floods, fires, ice storms, snowstorms, barking dogs, unfriendly moose who think like Boston drivers (they think they own the road), wild turkeys (and I don't mean only the birds), and many more things that I don't have the time to mention. But you will be happy to know that the next really big event will be a nice one — I hope. The 2004 Bicentennial Committee met for the first time last week, and I am happy to report, especially to Fred Emerson, that there are many plans in the making. Could someone find out for me what the record is for the world's largest birthday cake? More on that later. Does anyone really remember just where on the Town Common the time capsule was buried? We may have to have a "find the capsule scavenger hunt," but don't worry, we'll find it. Seriously, the committee would like your input on just what it should do for our 200th birthday, so think about it and give me a call. We still have two years, but they go by fast and we want to be ready.

Marjorie Stinson wants to thank all the friends and family who made her 80th birthday such a special one. We had a great time even if I forgot to serve the cherries jubilee.

lee. Oh yeah, I really did.

The puzzle of the Andover Common that the Andover Historical Society auctioned off went to the highest bidder, Marcia Meisner Raymond, who now lives in Byfield, Mass. The society also has some really nice magnets depicting the Town Common and Bandstand, the Congregational Church, the Elm Street School, the Comsat Station bubble, and the Lovejoy Covered Bridge. These magnets would make nice Christmas presents.

The Historical Society wishes to thank the following for their recent donations of time, money and historical articles: Bill Thurston, Violet and Robert Swain, Dale McKay, Ronnie White, Betty Moore, Bill and Bev Swan, Norma and Freeman Farrington, Stephen and Rebecca Hudspeth, John Fox, Rumford Historical Society, Peter Stowell, Sally and Paul Bodwell, Joy Porter, Robert Spidell, Leatrice Myshrell, the Lapham Family of Hanover, Barbara Hayden, the family of Helen Chase, Harold Hutchins, Archer Poor, Maxine Thurston, Allan Fraser, Andover Service Circle, Louis Hall, Eda Perkins, Leon and Trudy Akers, Patty Springhorn, and Art Whitten.

Violet and Robert Swain recently spent five days in Baton Rouge, La., attending Robert's 10th Squadron Reunion. It rained every day.

Birthdays for the upcoming week include Reina Berg, Ed Witt and Kayla Morton on the 26th; Ben Bartlett on the 27th; Deagan Conrad and Gregory Balla on the 28th; Logan Kerschner on the 29th; Patrick Milligan on the 30th; Miranda Stinson, Hank Morton Sr., Darcy Morse and Julie Merrill on the 31st; and Samantha Mayberry, John Devivo, Austin Mills and Peter Hurd on Nov. 1.

The word of the week is "pacheco." Look it up. See ya.

Upton

Fall is definitely here, but we have been blessed with such beautiful weather since Labor Day. There have been a few frosts and very little showers. The water in the lake has risen a little, but the level is still very low in Umbagog. I'm sure between the drought and water control we have lost a lot of water lilies.

Last weekend, we went south to the Boston area to attend a family wedding. We also received a great guided tour of Boston from Moe and Pat Nolan of Westwood. The tour included "Castle Island" which has a fort that goes back to the 1600s. The "Big Dig" is really a mess but is much improved since last year. Automobile traffic is still pretty bad. In spite of the terrible events of Sept. 11, the people were remarkably relaxed. All races and ethnic backgrounds were represented out strolling with their families. It was hard to believe that there is so much turmoil in the world.

I received a postcard from Herb Thomas from Mt. Fuji in Japan. He must have a wonderful postcard collection because the card was at least ten years old, and mailed from California.

This weekend, Larry Nelson and Jim Kenney traveled to Canada (New Brunswick) to "eyeball" the newest snowmobiles. They did not return empty handed. "Be prepared is their motto."

I just checked to see if Roger Lavalley's boat was still in the cove. The fog is so thick over the water that it is still a mystery.

The "roller skiers" are active on Route 26. They sure are in fine physical shape from skating up over Grafton Notch. I envy their stamina and determination. At age 73 envy is all I have to offer.

The Ladies Aid held a birthday party for Lucille Lagesse at the home of Debbie Judkins. A video of a circus owned by Debbie's brother was viewed by members. Imagine owning your own circus. It sounds wonderful until you think about cleaning up after the elephants.

A big thank you to Jamie Hallen for her gift of a new bird book. Jamie lives in Visalia, Calif., and reads our column on the Internet.

We offer our sympathy to the family of Mary Angevine. Mary attended many of our Ladies Aid events in the past.

Since we have a new bird book, we will finish that story on the House Finch, as it is the "Bird of the Week." The house finch was accidentally introduced to the East Coast about 60 years ago. "Cage Bird" dealers illegally trapped these birds and shipped them to New York as "Hollywood" finches. When government agents stepped in, the dealers released the birds. Now house finches are thriving from New York to Maryland and points south. They are often confused with purple finches because of fairly similar plumage. He has a bright red forehead and breast. His cheery warble brightens the dullest of days. The house finch, or linnet, is a favorite of all but the orchard grower. Out West they descend en masse on ripening fruit trees. Flocks break up in April, as males pair off with females when the young birds' fancy turns to thoughts of love. They are not fussy where they nest as long as it is near a water supply. They may nest in a stovepipe, tree limb, tin cup or an abandoned nest of other species. The males do not get colored plumage till their second year. The females also lack color and are dull brown streaked. She must be beautiful to her mate as he serenades and feeds her as she sits on her eggs.

Breaking News — The fog has lifted and Roger's boat has sailed away for this year.

North Newry

by Gil Sceleey

Call to worship at the Newry Community Church was held Sunday morning, Oct.

14, at 9 a.m., with Pastor Rodney Hanscom at the pulpit and daughter Nancy at the organ. Thought for the day was by Sue Wight. The message of the day was "Seed Time to Harvest" from St. Luke 12:18 and 19. "And he said, this I will do; I will put down my barns, and build greater; and there will I bestow all my fruits and goods. And I will say to my Soul, Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink and be merry." A prayer followed, hymns, benediction and postlude. Amen.

By the time you read this, I will be 94 years old. My "Guardian Angel" (a friend) took me to get my eyes checked and to get my license. I will be able to drive for a few more years, thank God.

The Newry Mothers Club will be having their annual Halloween Party on Oct. 28 from noon to 2 p.m. All members are being asked to bake some goodies and donate a bag of candy. Any questions, please call Patty. Patty's also asking for volunteers to help out at the party.

Happy 22nd birthday Dani Littleale on Oct. 16. Her grandparents, John and Nancy Wight, held a family birthday party for her at their home.

Gilead

I have been silenced by the events of the world and of even the small events of my personal life. The imposition of Terrorism and Bio-terrorism have knocked the wind out of me and I struggle to hold on to what I am familiar with, as a child hangs on to a favorite bear. The atmosphere is throbbing with panic and blame as our known reality is thrown into question. The media is a shout sent up into the hills echoing itself over and over again like coyotes howling at the moon. Sept. 11 will send ripples across the galaxy for a long time to come. I am truly amazed by the power of one moment to change life in a radical way. Suddenly I feel as if I'm living on the edge of a great abyss.

Each day is charged with an energy that asks me to consider the relevance of all my activities. Each day asks me to reveal myself to those I hold dear without concern for the judgments and opinions of those who know nothing of me — the me that fills my body shell with prayers, dreams, passions — the me that aims high but doesn't always make a graceful leap — the me that can be shared with only the slow hammering away of time. Each day asks me to release my fears and leap into the great unknown trusting that invisible force not to let me fall.

I thought it was enough to make the leap into a new state and begin life again in an environment that feels more natural to me. Learning to meet new people and trust the unknown can be very scary. Coming into contact with assumptions is disconcerting. I've noticed that when you settle into a new arena, people who have always been in that arena assume you are aware of certain basic facts. They believe you speak the same language. We can be speaking what seems like the same language to each other and yet we can't understand each other because we bring a different set of associations to the words. Misunderstandings are common. Judgments are made.

My 17-year-old son took Drivers Ed last December. My husband and I went to a class to listen and participate as required. We heard a lengthy lecture about how Massachusetts drivers are the epitome of evil...how they are out to kill you and there is nothing more necessary to avoid than a Massachusetts driver. My husband and I knew the drama of a teacher's scare tactic...she was just trying to make the kids aware of what a life/death thing driving a car is. In her innocent way, she told my son he had been driving with evil drivers, that because he came from Massachusetts, he was a potential killer driver. He lost respect for that teacher. Why? He had been driving with those drivers all his born days and no one had ever tried to kill him. His loss of respect was met with his being asked to leave the class eventually. The teacher read Sam as being disrespectful without giving any thought to how disrespectful she/he had been to Sam. It's a shame really that people get so caught up in putting their point across that they aren't even remotely aware of how they are being received.

Since Sept. 11 I have had several moments to experience the humility of realizing that what I perceived was the truth of a matter, was seen very differently by someone else. Perhaps letting go of the known (my personal truth) so that I can become acquainted with the unknown requires something extraordinary and fresh — like wings and a gust of air lifting me up and over the abyss.

Some days as I sit by a window a big gray rabbit goes by. He goes leisurely toward the backyard where he gets plenty of green food, then moves on into the woods.

It's now autumn again. Each one is different. I have seen various changes but it remains interesting. We see, then leave for another time, the jack-in-the-pulpit, the frantic nest building and the last peeping of the frogs. Then comes dancing lightning bugs, thunder-showers and night breezes as soft as velvet.

The marauder that I dislike most is a cat someone abandoned. It has survived the cold weather and has wandered around through the deep grass of summer searching for ground nest birds, mice or whatever it can find. He seems to have disowned humans and I understand

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

Sharon Bouchard's column is published here by special arrangement with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

Trick or Treat, smell my feet, give me something good to eat — remember that?

That was a pretty popular Halloween rhyme when I was a little kid and I bet it still is. I remember how I would recite it over and over driving my parents and anyone else near me crazy. I thought it was so cute, but I was smart enough not to recite it when knocking on doors in search of the candy handouts. I may have been annoying, but I was no fool. I wasn't about to take a chance on having the treats with held because some one thought I was an obnoxious wisenheimer.

As a small child, I found Halloween to be a real mixed bag. I loved the idea of dressing up as a ghost or a ghoul, but my costumes were always my brother's hand-me-downs so I was always a pretty ratty ghost or ghoul. And I used to insist that my jacket go on under the costume as a little kid could be. Then all the fears of the dark and the ghost and goblins previously encountered on the dark streets of town would descend upon me making Halloween night one of the worst nights of my life.

On top of that my eyes and the slits in the rubber masks never seemed to quite line up so my mother always had to point me in the right direction of a neighbor's door. Plus the mask made my face sweat and that dripped into my eyes, which were already, a problem so I would usually trip up over the neighbor's steps.

I was also scared. I was a little kid so I believed in ghosts and witches and monsters and hobgoblins. Even though I knew that I was in costume I was never all that sure that the other goblins I encountered on my Trick or Treat trip were not the real thing. Okay, so I was a little slow. I do remember that I was greatly relieved when I was safely back home with my bag of goodies.

The bag of goodies — that was definitely the best part. The very idea of knocking on doors and getting free candy was the most amazing concept to me. My brother and I would put all our sweet loot in big bowls and proceed to get rid of the junk — apples, popcorn, raisins — the things that were actually okay to eat. Then we would get into the serious business of trading. Kenny, being older, wiser and perhaps just a little devious, would always make out the best. He would convince me that if he gave me one Sugar Daddy I should give him at least three Milky Way bars. The Sugar Daddy lasts a lot longer he would explain, therefore a fair trade. I can't believe I fell for that every time.

Then the more serious business of eating the candy was in order. I could cram more candy into my little mouth in the shortest period of time than anyone you ever saw. By bedtime I was as sick to my stomach as a little kid could be. Then all the fears of the dark and the ghost and goblins previously encountered on the dark streets of town would descend upon me making Halloween night one of the worst nights of my life.

It's still one of the worst nights of my life, but for different reasons. I never really know exactly what or how much candy I should have on hand for Trick or Treat. This probably doesn't sound very serious, but believe me, it is.

Some years we have had a lot of Trick or Treaters come to our house and have actually run out of candy and had to pilfer my kids' stash of goodies. Most years however, we have been the house forgotten and have had few or no Trick or Treaters at all.

When you don't expect many kids to come, but can't be sure, the big question becomes what kind of candy to buy and how much. Do I get candy that I like to eat, knowing full well that once the evening is over and few kids have shown up I will cram all of it into my now big mouth and go to bed with a stomachache and overpowering fears of fat and guilt? Or do I buy a kind of candy that I don't like and end up throwing it all away and then go to bed feeling okay, but with overpowering fears of guilt because I wasted money on all that candy.

I could get the cheapest candy I could find, but in the event that any kids do show up, I don't want them to think I'm cheap and maybe wax my windows or throw eggs at my door (do kids do that anymore?). I could make up a batch of popcorn and give that along with apples, but I hated that as a kid. Popcorn and apples are always available; good candy is hard to come by for free. No, I won't give out popcorn and apples.

I could bake cookies or cupcakes and give them to the kids, but certain sickos have ruined that concept by putting harmful things in baked goods so now no parent will allow a child to have anything that isn't wrapped. I certainly don't blame them plus I would eat all of whatever is left over anyway.

Sugar-free gum is probably a pretty safe way to go. The kids like it, sort of and it doesn't promote tooth decay. It is also dull, in fact it's just about as dull as popcorn and apples. No wonder kids don't come to my house; I'm a Trick or Treat nightmare.

To heck with it, I'm going to march myself right out to the store right now and buy some darn good candy and plenty of it too. If the kids come to my house, they'll get something good. If they don't show up I'll get something good.

I'm pretty sure that come Halloween night there will be a lot of little kids going to bed with tummy aches and they will have some pretty bad nightmares and the way I see it, they won't be alone because I'm pretty sure that I'll be doing it too.

teamed up at the Locke Mills Legion Hall to sponsor a benefit dance for the New York firemen's widows' and children's fund. Many thanks for your generosity, which helped us reach an amazing total of $1,282. Our thanks also go out to the Rockin Road Runners Band. You guys have a great band. Special thanks go to John Patrick for his generosity in matching the donations. Thank you to all the businesses and individuals who donated wonderful merchandise and gift certificates to be used as door prizes and raffle prizes. Thank you Legion auxiliary ladies for your time and efforts. Everyone was glad to come and help and a good time was had by all.

Dr. Ida Page of Sumner and Turner, a chiropractic practitioner with offices in Turner, was the guest speaker at the Baptist Church Women's Guild at their meeting on Tuesday, Oct. 16, at the West Paris Baptist Church.

The town of West Paris had been anxiously awaiting the arrival of their new rescue unit. It arrived on Wednesday, Oct. 17 at 10:10 a.m. It is a wonder to behold. It is a P.H. Custom Gold Medallion 1998 Ford E450. It cost $58,585. We received a grant for $20,506 and a loan for $38,100 at 4.5 percent for 15 years, both from the USDA. This unit is fully warranted. The interior of the unit is all stainless steel and glass with lots of cupboard space for supplies. There is a center mount cot with ample workspace around it. Oxygen hookups are in four separate places. A chair on casters and a side-mounted bench provide extra sitting and lying space. A "TV" monitor in the cab lets the driver know what is behind the ambulance at all times. Equipment and clothing for handling hazardous spills is still desperately needed. Donations, no matter how large or small, will be gratefully accepted.

The Oxford County Emergency Management Agency is holding two four-hour Weapons of Mass Destruction Awareness Level Training sessions for all law enforcement, fire and rescue personnel at OHCHS on Nov. 7 from 8 a.m. to noon.

The Flu Shot Clinic scheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 23 has been rescheduled to Wednesday, Nov. 21 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the West Paris Grange Hall. These shots are free with Medicare and Medicaid and cost only $8 for all others.

The annual Rabies Clinic will be held on Saturday, Oct. 27, from 8 to 10 a.m. at the West Paris Grange Hall, with Dr. Todd Gager and crew on hand.

Also, on the evening of Oct. 27, there will be a Halloween Benefit Dance at the West Paris Fire Station for Sonja Buker, given by her friends and their mothers. The dance will be from 7 to 11 p.m. with music by Doug Penley. If you come in costume, the charge will be $2, while it will be $5 if you do not wear a costume. There will be a 50/50 raffle and refreshments sold. All young people must be accompanied by an adult. Craft baskets and other items will also be raffled off. Come on out, help this good cause and have a good time.

Thank you to all the businesses that donated wonderful merchandise and gift certificates for the families of the New York firemen. The generosity reached $1,282 at the dance and a big thank you to the Rockin Road Runners Band.

Thank you to the American Legion Auxiliary units 68 in Locke Mills and 151 in West Paris. A special thank you to Representative John Patrick, who put up a challenge and had a good response from the audience.

A 25th wedding anniversary party was held for Duane and Lisa Ryerson at the historical building in West Paris. They were married Sept. 18, 1976. The hall was decorated in lilac and lavender and refreshments and a 25th anniversary cake were served. Lisa's sister, Faye Hill, read an original poem and Faye's girls sang a special song. A tape, "My Wild Days Are Over," made many years ago by Duane's grandfather, Walter Appleby Sr., was played. Many friends and relatives came to wish them many more years of happiness. Duane and Lisa have three children, Matthew, Melanie and Casey, and one grandchild.

Alex Ryerson was in the soapbox derby held in West Paris. He also plays football at Livermore School.

Around 75 attended the house warming for Heath and Torrey Poland held Oct. 14 on Curtis Hill Road here in South Woodstock. An abundance of refreshments were served. They recently had their house built and moved in a month before. We wish them many years of happiness in their new home.

Much sympathy to the family and friends of Wilfred Danforth, who died recently. Mr. and Mrs. Danforth lived here on Curtis Hill and he will be missed.

Larry Billings, curator of the Woodstock Historical Society, reports that treasurer Paul Billings, spoke on Plymouth Plantation and members enjoyed the presentation. The November meeting will be on the history of toys, a slide presentation from the National Gallery of Art.

Quote of the Week: "I've learned that if you throw 10 socks in the laundry, only nine will come out."

Groups visiting the Bethel Historical Society's Regional History Center recently include the Molly Ockett Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Maine Old Cemetery Association.

Another famous person has been identified who was a patient at the Gehring Clinic in the early years of the 20th century. His name is George Ellery Hale, who built the Mt. Palomar telescope, helped found the Huntington Library, Caltech, the city of Pasadena, Calif., and the National Academy of Science building in Washington, DC, among other projects. He visited Dr. John George Gehring in Bethel around 1913 and apparently responded well to the regimen prescribed by the good doctor, which included lots of exercise and relaxation in a wholesome environment. Patients were urged to dress in their best for dinner and were allowed only to discuss music, art and cultural subjects (not themselves) during the meal.

Over $1,500 has been donated to date in memory of Charter, Life, and Honorary Member Geraldine S. Howe, who died on Sept. 6. Among the contributors to a permanent flowering plant fund that will bear her name are: Bessie M. Bennett, Bethel; Randall H. SHE CAN SAVE YOUR LIFE,
BUT SHE CAN'T BE YOUR NEIGHBOR.

She is a certified nurse's assistant at an assisted-care living facility, in one of Maine's more affluent communities. She loves her job. She loves the people she helps. But what she could do without is the hour-long commute to and from work each day. Diversity within Maine's communities is key to their continued growth and vitality. When a segment of the population is forced to live elsewhere, the community ultimately suffers. Businesses can't find the employees they need to expand, community-based volunteer services disappear, and the community that was once so desirable isn't anymore.

In Maine, the ability of your community to provide safe, decent and affordable housing is critical to its success. If you'd like to see your community do more, call the Maine State Housing Authority for more information at 800-452-4668.

From the Bethel Rotary Club

This week in Rotary was Bring a Friend to Rotary. Rotary guests learned about Rotary International and our local club's programs. The program was kicked off by a Rotary video, "Your Choice for Change." Fellow members then explained different programs such as Rotary Foundation, Rotary International and the Rotaplast program, Christmas for Children, the Golf Tournament, the Scholarship Program and the Annual Auction. It was informative to members and guests alike and future articles will expound on these areas.

Rotary's motto is "Service Above Self" and Rotarians around the world try to bide by the Four-way Test of the things we think, say, or do — first, is it the truth? Second, is it fair to all concerned? Third, will it build goodwill and better friendships? And, fourth, will it be beneficial to all concerned?

President Bob Laux presented Channel 4 with a donation. Andy Wheeler accepted it on behalf of Channel 4 and said that the donation would go toward a digital camera. He also expressed the need for volunteers.

Calendar items: October, Vocational Service Month; Oct/Nov, Look for the Poinsettia Sale; Nov. 17, Bridgton's Rotary Club's 10th Anniversary Celebration; Nov. 25, Country Pancake Breakfast; Nov/Dec, Christmas for Children Drive; Dec. 11, Senior Dinner.

Did you know that Trick-or-Treat for UNICEF targets polio for the first time? Since 1950, generations of American children have foregone Halloween candy to Trick-or-Treat for UNICEF. This Halloween, for the first time, the proceeds will be devoted to a specific cause: polio eradication. The collection boxes will bear the logos of Rotary International and the United Nations Foundation. Rotary, the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the World Health Organization, and UNICEF are spearheading the Global Polio Eradication Initiative. UNICEF's decision this year to target polio is an effort to close the funding gap needed to eradicate polio by 2005.

Get a jump on the Holidays — buy a poinsettia. Poinsettias are great for that special event, home decoration, or gift. Thanks to Designs, we'll again be selling two sizes of white and red poinsettia plants. Small size is $18 and large size is $22. Phase 1 orders taken by Nov. 20 will be available for delivery Nov. 23-25. Place your order with any Bethel Rotarian or call Cynthia at 824-4500 or Dawna at 336-9050. Proceeds from this sale support the Bethel Rotary's many community projects.

Rotary International is an international service organization of 1.2 million business and professional men and women who, as volunteers, address needs of their home and international communities.

The Bethel Rotary Club meets Tuesdays at 7:30 a.m. and the Bethel Alliance Church will host the Oct. 30 meeting.

Nov. 7; Marketing, on Wednesday, Nov. 14; Cash Flow Projection, on Tuesday, Nov. 20; and Financing a Small Business, on Wednesday, Nov. 28. All sessions will meet at 6:30 p.m. The fee for the four-session class is $40 and includes participation by one business partner or spouse. To register, call the Adult Education office, 824-2780.

Upcoming course offerings:

Family Backpacking
An "Introduction to Family Hiking" workshop is scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 3, at Cardigan Lodge in Alexandria, N.H. Families with children six and older will learn all about planning, equipment, safety, food prep, and low-impact camping techniques and will even learn to use a map and compass. The extensive trail network at Cardigan provides a great introduction to hiking for families with young children.

Learn Early Winter Skills

An outdoor skills workshop entitled "Early Winter Summits" will be offered from Saturday, Nov. 10 through Sunday, Nov. 11, in Crawford Notch, N.H. Designed for outdoor enthusiasts, the workshop covers the basic skills of dealing with the varied conditions of late fall in the White Mountains. Join us for an early winter exploration of some of the beautiful peaks around Crawford Notch. Depending on snow and ice conditions, this workshop may include the basic use of crampons and ice axe.

Hike Mount Washington
AMC will lead a "Winter Mountain Weather" workshop on Friday, Nov. 16 through Sunday, Nov. 17. Participants will hike to the summit weather observatory and learn why this mountain is known as the "Home of the World's Worst Weather." Participants will enjoy a rare opportunity to spend a night at the Mount Washington Observatory — the top of New England — as they study mountain weather, including storm systems, zonation, and climatology, and plant and animal adaptations to the harsh environment.

These offerings are open to everyone, AMC members and non-members alike.

For reservations and workshop information, or to join the AMC, call (603) 466-2727, or visit the web at www.outdoors.org.

NOW News

Project NOW has been facilitating smoking cessation at Rumford Hospital for five participants who wish to quit smoking and have taken the first step toward a healthier future. Many of these participants have mentioned the fact that "Where they work" plays a key role in their smoking habits. Some workplaces have gone the extra mile to establish a smoke-free workplace policy. Unfortunately, many employers have yet to realize the significance such a policy plays in the health of the employees and in the quality of their business.

Studies show that smoking leads to increased absenteeism in the workplace, resulting in the loss of hundreds of dollars per smoking employee each year. This cost is the result of the average extra two days of leave a smoking employee tends to take. Decreased productivity results from smoking that takes place during non-break times. Not only is smoking in the workplace a financial issue, but also a health issue.

Even non-smokers are affected from smoking. The fumes inhaled from secondhand smoke can just as easily cause disease and death in a non-smoker as it can a smoker. Fortunately, the state of Maine passed a law pertaining to no smoking in restaurants a couple years ago. However, those eating establishments that purchase a lounge license may still continue to allow smoking in their facility. In this situation, an employee is unable to work in a smoke-free, healthy environment. This also makes it difficult for those employees that are trying to "Kick the Habit."

Some suggestions for employers who wish to establish a smoke-free workplace is to first start with developing a wellness team made up of employees. This team can meet weekly or monthly and work not only on smoking issues, but also other issues associated with health. This type of committee boosts employee morale, resulting in an increase in productivity, as well as an increase in a positive work climate.

Project NOW stands for Northern Oxford Wellness and is funded through the Campaign for a Healthy Maine. This organization is based out of Rumford as part of River Valley Healthy Communities Coalition. Project NOW's purpose is to educate others on the topics of tobacco, physical fitness, and good nutrition. The surrounding areas benefiting from these grant monies are those towns in SAD21, SAD43, SAD44, and Peru. If anyone has any questions or comments, please call RVHCC at 364-7408.

Attack on America

Weeping, crying, fire, smoke, suffering, sadness of heroes dying.

Family members, friends, and strangers dying from the sudden crash.

Thousands and thousands helping still, making piles of supporting ash.

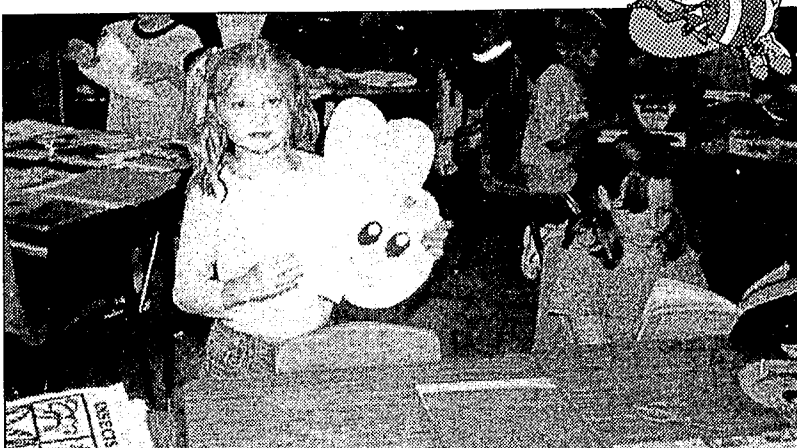

Friends and family in hospital wings suffering from their illness, people trying to make them cheerful but their hope stays down.

Children learning all about it, puzzled why it happened. Silence, when its name is mentioned.

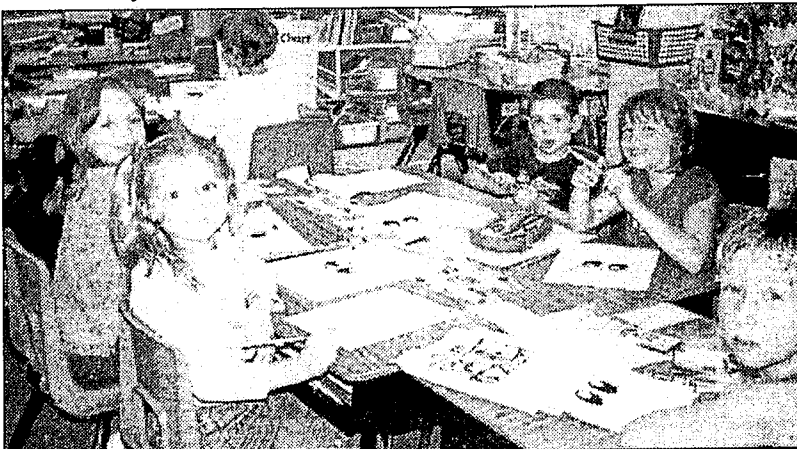

People start to think, why did this happen? We can only think and guess. We shall never know.

America, Please Don't Fear

The twin towers were hit the other day
Why is the U.S. being treated this way?

Still, America has not lost its pride
Although thousands have died and so many have cried

For lost loved ones and friends.

Who is doing this, and will it end?

Will the U.S. ever be the same?
What is this sick little game?

Who can the U.S. blame
For this terrible act that came.

All of us have shed a tear
But America, please don't fear.

We will get the people who did this.
That is my one wish.

So I'll ask again will the U.S. ever be the same way?
We'll just have to go on living and take it day by day.

And this little note to those who have died:
May God be with you, and America rests at your side.

Telstar News

WILDERNESS TRIP--The 2000-2001 Telstar seminar class "The Telstar Challenge" raised more than $1,600 for a canoe camping trip. They canoed the Allagash Wilderness Waterway during the third week of June. Members included Lauren Hart, Jenna Poor, Paul Cox, Alex Johnson, Dan Smith, Kaleb Durgin, Becky LaVallee, Beth LaVallee, Steve Keane. In addition to fundraisers, the class received donations from Project Opportunity, Bethel Rotary, Oxford Telecom, Grover Gundrilling and Hancock Lumber. The group expresses their thanks to them, as well as to Supt. Kent Rosberg and the SAD44 School Board for supporting the trip.

TEAMWORK--Each year the sophomore class at Telstar High School spends a day at the Bog Brook Training facility in Gilead. The class participates in activities that test their problem-solving abilities and teamwork. The guardsmen that take part stress emotional safety (no putdowns) and physical safety. It is a day of fun and risk-taking for all. Here, Alex Best, with help from his support team, walks a wire triangle.

SABIN RECOGNIZED

Benjamin Sabin, son of Roger and Barbara Sabin of Andover, has been named a Commended Student in the 2002 National Merit Scholarship Program. A Letter of Commendation from the school and National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC), which conducts the program, will be presented to this scholastically talented senior. Commended Students placed among the top 5 percent of more than one million students who entered the 2002 competition by taking the 2000 Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test.

A Prayer for Peace

As I stare at the stars at night
I wonder what it was like
What was it like to be in this tragedy?
I feel the sorrow for all of the families
And I mourn the sadness of the United States.

I may know nothing about the World Trade Center
But I do know that we must stand strong
We must work as a team/And stay as one.
"We are Americans, not barbarians"
But we will take action/
We will be a team
And stand strong.

This overwhelming action is sickening.
How can someone do this to other people?
How can they destroy so many lives?
How can anyone be as selfish as the people who did this?

If I could I would trade my own life
For all of those fallen.

I feel the sadness for those who felt their heart
shatter in their chest
There is no way to prepare yourself.
Knowing you are going to die in seconds
And feeling your life be taken away
For a reason of nonsense.

I know I will never feel the pain of the mother who watched her son's plane explode or how the kids felt to know their parent is never coming home.
I could never explain how saddening this is
I could never write the words to stop all this hate.

I know that one person could make a difference
Then I imagine what it would be like if 10,000
plus people took a stand
Some may think that I am only a 16-year-old boy
Who will amount to nothing.
They assume I don't care
But they have no idea.
I care about my life
The lives of my family
And I care about the lives of my fellow people

People I have never met or even know.
I will pray for those who died
And I will pray for all the people still missing
Under a maze of twisted metal and rubble
There lie mothers, fathers, sons and daughters
There lie people's families, to be changed forever.
Those who die will rise to the gates of heaven
And float gracefully on the clouds.
Although they are gone, they will rest in our hearts forever.

They will live on inside of us.
I knew no one in this tragedy
But I know they deserved better.
That is why I wrote this poem.
This is my only gift I can give
The only way I can express how I feel
And many others.
These are my feelings and I share them with the world.

I hope I touched everyone
And let us all pray for hope and peace.

When Dr. Miller and her husband were moving from West Virginia, they packed two trucks: one for their belongings and one for her plants. Obviously, Dr. Miller has a passion for gardening. She also has a passion for family medicine. Looking for the ideal rural place in which to practice, she settled on Norway for the beauty of the area and the quality of medicine found at Western Maine Family Practice and Stephens Memorial Hospital. We think she'll add a lot to the landscape.

Dr. Miller found a place to put down roots.
